IN THE CIRCUIT COURT

AN EMBARRASSING SITUATION AT THE CLOSE OF THE JACOBS TRIAL

The court was called on this morning to face one of the most annoying incidents that has ever ruffled its erstwhile placid bosom. The Sam Jacobs murder trial drew to a close last night and the jury were charged and retired to consider a verdict. It seems they agreed on a verdict shortly afterwards, sealed it up and repaired to their boarding house. Late in the night his roommate heard Juror Theophilus Williams, a wealthy citizen of Cotton Plant, vomiting and seemingly in great bodily distress. He went to sleep and thought nothing more of it, but this morning the man was gone and could not be found. Court convened and there was a missing juror.

The court told the bailiff, George Cleveland, to lie the jury into some secluded spot and refrain from talking or being talked to on the matter and await developments. In the meantime the sheriff was searching for the juror. His horse was in its stall and it was feared that the man was ill, having wandered off.

This is the first incident of this kind that has happened in this court since any one present could remember. If the verdict was an acquittal, Mr. Carter said he could dispose of the case by pronouncing it a mistrial and not pressing the case, but if a conviction, a full jury would have to be present to hear the reading of the verdict.

GALLIPEAU ON TRIAL

Arthur Gallipeau, who shot and instantly killed a negro neighbor at Shady Grove about a month ago, one Sunday morning, is on trial today in Judge Hocker's court. The jury was gathered from town people mostly. Mr. Zewadski is defending the prisoner. Mr. Gallipeau is a white, well appearing, very small of stature and heretofore bore the character of a very quiet, mind-his-own-business sort of a man. He has few or no witnesses and the state has only two or three.

Jurors in the Gallipeau case: R. A. Baskin, J. F. Luffman, J. D. Baskin, J. F. Fonville, L. J. Brumby, L. F. Ballard, C. E. Green, B. W. Pendleton, Thomas Peabworth, S. R. Birdsey, Jr., W. L. Vandeventer, C. A. Brown.

This term of court has been a very trying one on Judge Hocker. The Judge had a severe chill last night, followed with high fever, but was in his seat today presiding over the court with his usual dignity and fairness. The work in this circuit, without the establishment of a criminal court, or some other means of lightening the burden, will kill any judge who follows it long enough.

AN IMPORTANT DIFFERENCE

To make it apparent to thousands, who think themselves ill, that they are not afflicted with any disease, but that the system simply needs cleansing, is to bring comfort home to their hearts, as a costive condition is easily cured by using Syrup of Figs. HOWARD LOCATED

MISSING TERRA CEIA MERCHANT FOUND IN CHATTANOOGA

Already wedded, he sought sudden seclusion. Rather than face his expectant bride at the altar, he left Montgomery and was traced by detectives to the suburbs of Chattanooga, where he now is, not a corpse, but alive and well.

Through the efforts of the Tribune, the mystery attending the disappearance of C. W. Howard, of the firm of Howard & Kennedy, of Terra Ceia, which has puzzled the state of Florida for a week, has been solved. Phelan Beale, an energetic newspaper man of Birmingham, Ala., to which city the missing merchant had been traced by means of railroad pass, was employed by the Tribune to run down every clew connected with the strange case, and to discover, if possible, what had become of Mr. Howard. The Tribune's representative associated himself with the private detectives who had been employed by friends at both ends of the line, and the result has been an unraveling of the perplexing mystery. The prominence of the principal character of the story, the fact that, when he disappeared, he was on his way to wed a charming lady of Birmingham, and the greatest interest in the case manifested by everybody in Tampa and the surrounding country, warranted the extra exertions of the Tribune, and makes the present disclosure of engrossing importance. —Tampa Tribune.
